DYE TRANSFER DISCLAIMER

Dye transfer occurs when colored dyes come into contact with white or lighter materials, leaving unwanted stains or discoloration. This happens often with strong or permanent dyes used in garments and accessories that are transferred onto lighter upholstery materials. This occurrence can also be more likely in the presence of elevated humidity and temperature.

Please keep in mind that not all dye transfer stains can be completely removed, but the sooner it is addressed, the better chance you have of removing the dye. Preventing dye transfer is the best approach. Please note Eternity Modern will not assume responsibility for dye transfer resulting from external factors.

FABRIC PILLING DISCLAIMER

Pilling occurs when excess fibers work its way up to the surface of the fabric and collect in the form of small fuzzy balls or lint, and is usually caused by friction and daily wear and tear. Please note that pilling is a natural occurrence in all fabrics and is not an indicator of fabric quality. Pilling does not affect the durability or functionality of a fabric, and it is not considered a defect.
